The production model was ready for shipping hi September. It was a simplified version of the prototype, with only two controls, one for space, one for time. The range of the device was limited to one thousand miles. Nowhere on the casing of the device or in the instruction booklet was a patent number or a pending patent mentioned. Smith had called the device Ozo, perhaps because he thought it sounded vaguely Japanese. The booklet described the device as a distant viewer and gave clear, simple instructions for its use. One sentence read cryptically: "Keep Time Control set at zero." It was like "Wet Paint-Do Not Touch." "I don't know. I don't want you to get in trouble." Mary Lang let it work itself out, only interfering when it got violent. She herself was not immune to the frenzy but managed to stay aloof from most of it. She went to the shelter with whoever asked her, trying not to play favorites, and gently tried to prod them back to work. As she told McKillian toward the first of the week, "At least we're getting to know one another." rope, then, and perhaps you can spare a man to go with me. A rope is not much good if there is a person. It may be because I was always rotten in math, but it wasn't until right then that I figured out. Fiction which isn't openly polemical or didactic is nonetheless chock-full of politics. If beauty in fiction. "Ever think of making a new seat for your pants out of part of that flak-jacket?"
