well-known, often used names with caution, since they are in fact words in the Old Speech, and may with the spells worked in such events and their success or unsuccess. Such random records reveal a division of blights and fires and sicknesses across the land, and the village witch was punished for them. She had not thought. He had taken the shape that came soonest to him, run to the river as an otter. The ground near his legs, which were caked with drying mud. When he looked up and saw Ogion's. After a long pause he went on. "You know that a dragon brought back our Lord Sparrowhawk, with the young king, from the shores of death. Then the dragon carried Sparrowhawk away to his home, for his power was gone, he was not a mage. So presently the Masters of Roke met to choose a new Archmage, here, in the Grove, as always. He knew nothing at all about women. He had not lived where women were since he was ten years old. He had been afraid of them, the women that shouted at him to get out of the way in that great other kitchen long ago. But since he had been traveling about in Earthsea he had met women and found them easy to be with, like the animals; they went about their business not paying much attention to him unless he frightened them. He tried not to do that. He had no wish or reason to frighten them. They were not men..The roof of the cavern was far above him. Again his glance flicked to Irian and away.. "Magic won't die on Roke," said Veil. "On Roke all spells are strong. So said Ath himself. And you have walked under the trees... Our job must be to keep that strength. Hide it, yes. Hoard it, as a young dragon hoards up its fire. And share it. But only here. Pass it on, one to the next, here, where it's safe, and where the great robbers and killers would least look for it, since no one here is of any account.
