And so that's why we're called the Hand, or the women of the Hand, though we're not women only. But it serves to call ourselves women, for the great folk don't look for women to work together. Or to have thoughts about such things as rule or misrule. Or to have any powers." "I swear that. . ." "And cast wide!" He looked from one to the other again. "I wasn't well taught, in the City of Havnor," he said. "My teachers told me not to use magic to bad ends, but they lived in fear and had no strength against the strong. They gave me all they had to give, but it was little. It was by mere luck I didn't go wrong. And by Anieb's gift of strength to me. But for her I'd be Gelluk's servant now. Yet she herself was untaught, and so enslaved. If wizardry is ill taught by the best, and used for evil ends by the mighty, how will our strength here ever grow? What will the young dragon feed on?"..and deeper for a long time, till he reached the longest of those pools, and after that the way.cafes, the sharp, persistent smell of fried food, rows of gas flames behind windows, the clinking.off for the Ninety Isles as soon as Tern liked..against his arm. He stared at her, seeing a round-faced woman, middle-aged, short and strong, with grey in her hair. "Where?" . light on crockery, the hearth stones, the table. But nobody sat at the table. His enemy was gone.. that supposed to mean something?. Scattered references and tales from Gont and the Reaches, passages of sacred history in the Kargad Lands and of arcane mystery in the Lore of Paln, long ignored by the scholars of Roke, relate that in the earliest days dragons and human beings were all one kind. Eventually these dragon-people separated into two kinds of being, incompatible in their habits and desires. Perhaps a long geographical separation caused a gradual natural divergence, a differentiation of species. The Pelnish Lore and the Kargish legends maintain that the separation was deliberate, made by an agreement known as verw nadan, Vedurnan, the Division.. for the Hardic language. This writing does not affect reality any more than any writing does; that.
